STORY:

Richard Willey, a Labor Junior Minister, plans, under the cover of an all-night commons sitting, to spend the night in Suite 648 at the four-star Westminster Hotel, London, with Jane Worthington, one of the opposition's junior secretaries. So the seeds are sown (or in Richard's case, not) for a hilarious Ray Cooney farce which won the Olivier Award for Best Comedy of the year in 1991. Things start to go disastrously wrong early on; when expecting only to handle Jane's body, Richard discovers the 'body' of a man trapped in the suite's unreliable sash window.

AVAILABLE ROLES:

Richard Willey MP

A suave and successful and married MP. He is a Junior Minister in the Labour Government. With a hands on approach to his work. Playing age 40 - 55.

The Manager of the Hotel

A pompous, interfering, and severe man with little or no humor who is only concerned for the reputation of his hotel. Playing age 40 - 60.

The Waiter in the Hotel

A nimble and wily old servant with some nice one-liners. Uses the situation to his advantage by obtaining hush money at every opportunity. Playing age 50 - 60.

The Maid in the hotel

A confused woman from somewhere around the Mediterranean. Playing age: 30 - 50. .

Jane Worthington

An attractive but dizzy young lady, who is one of a pool of secretaries at the House of Commons serving the opposition party and in particular it's Leader. Playing age: 25-35.

Ronnie Worthington

Husband to Jane. An angry and fiercely jealous young man. Playing age 25 - 35.

Pamela Willey

An attractive sophisticated woman, wife of Richard. Arrives unannounced to surprise her husband. Playing age 40-50.

Gladys

A bossy but attractive nurse to George's invalid Mother. Playing age 25- 40.

A Body

Man in a raincoat that gets moved around a lot. Ability to fall an advantage. Playing age 30 - 60.
