

Playing & Writing:

THE FUNDAMENTALS OF DRAMA

March 8th - May 3rd | Sundays | PM – 4 PM

This 8-week course introduces the fundamentals of playwriting through exercises, tools, and practices that engage with the “play” of playwriting. Each class will focus on a building block of drama (dialogue, setting, character, etc), and will include in-class writing, discussion, and group feedback. Writers will leave with a variety of play-making exercises, scenes, and their own ten-minute play.

Playing & Writing is the perfect foundation for new writers (or new-to-playwriting writers) itching to dive in the deep end. It is also appropriate for seasoned writers looking to kick-start their creativity in a supportive community.

Particular attention will be given to cultivating an environment – internally and in the wider group – that fosters support and creativity. Participants are expected to complete weekly writing explorations outside of class hours.

Cost: $550*

 To reserve spot in workshop participants must send check before March 8 to:
