Broadway Bound: College Audition Workshop

Real Perspective. Real Professors. Real Care.

Finding a college environment that fits your unique needs can be a difficult endeavor for young performers and their families:

What do I need? What is out there? Where do I even begin?

Broadway Bound Performing Arts Academy wants to help young artists (from the Albany area) better understand how to research, apply, audition, and choose a college uniquely suited for your interests.

Current University of Michigan Theatre Professors Chelsea and Geoff Packard provide their perspective and expertise pertaining to the arduous process of finding the right college Musical Theatre and Acting training program. As former Broadway professionals (Wicked, Bandstand, Matilda, Beautiful, Phantom of The Opera, Promises Promises, Hands on a Hardbody, Rock of Ages), former BFA Musical Theatre majors at two prestigious Universities (University of Michigan, University of Cincinnati-College/ Conservatory of Music) and current professors, they are uniquely positioned to help young hopefuls navigate this highly specialized process.

July 15 (12pm-4pm)

In this One day workshop they will offer young artists and their families:

- information about current Collegiate Landscape
- current audition practices (Self-Tape and In-Person)
- tips for optimizing your audition/interviews
- personalized audition material
- personalized coaching

We know how difficult this process can be, we have been there! But it can be a thrilling, joyful adventure if you balance expectations, prepare well, and showcase your unique talents. We will take the care necessary to start you off on the right path.

Come start your journey with us!
